

2009 MINOR 10 WORLD SERIES

The host site for the 2009 Cal Ripken Minor 10 World Series August 15-22 has been awarded to Lamar, Colorado.

Eight Regional Tournament Champion teams plus two automatic berths will converge in Lamar next August to engage in battle on the baseball diamond determining the nation's best 2009 ten year old baseball team.

In addition to the eight regional winners, Lamar, as tournament host, will receive an automatic berth along with the winner of the 2009 Colorado state Tournament hosted by CYBSA at Village Greens fields July 17-22. Should the Colorado State champion advance to the World Series as Regional Champion, the runner up from the Colorado State Tournament would then receive the automatic berth to the World Series in Lamar. Mark your calendars! Do not miss this incredible opportunity of attending a World Series being played right in our own back yard

DIVISION OF AGE GROUPS

To help level out the playing field, T-ball will now consist of two divisions: 4 year olds and first year 5 year olds (novice), and second year 5 year olds and 6 year olds (advanced).

The 13-15 division has also been split into 13 prep and 14-15 year olds. By splitting this age group, 13 year old players will no longer have to compete against 15 year olds. Additionally this split now allows a more realistic opportunity for the 12 year old swing player who can play on both a Major division roster and a 13 prep roster. This allows for more games at a higher level of competitive play without having to face 15 year old pitchers. If you have a 12 year old who would like to be designated as a swing player please indicate "swing player" in the special request section of your registration.
